Job Posting: Web Developer

For over 30 years, Christie Communications has been respected world-wide for the development of highly interactive, media rich, intensely tested custom eLearning and interactive media. The staff at Christie Communications thrive on working with clients to solve new challenges for eLearning program design, technical deployment, and project logistics.

What we have to offer:

- Interesting and diverse work, within a team-based atmosphere of continuous skill improvement.
- A professional, downtown Edmonton location.
- Benefits including flex-time.

Christie Communications requires an analytical, hard-working individual who uses a disciplined approach to developing and demonstrating technical knowledge. Reporting to the Production Manager, Developers are involved in the design and creation of eLearning programs. The ideal candidate will demonstrate strong “hands-on” technical abilities, and will be accurate and thorough with details.

In this position, you will:

- Help to create engaging and interactive eLearning activities.
- Use a methodical and systematic work style with consistent attentiveness to defined standards, policies, and practices.
- Work collaboratively with team members.

Qualifications:

- Proven knowledge of web application development using HTML, CSS3, JavaScript, and HTML5 specifications and APIs.
- Successful completion of a relevant educational program, courses in HTML5 are preferred. Knowledge of Flash and other development tools would be an asset.
- Minimum of 2 years' proven experience in technical development and programming would be an asset.
- Expertise in a variety of development environments.
- Excellent analytical skills and the ability to collaborate effectively with other members of the project team.
- Strong organization and time management skills to work within a deadline driven environment.
